

Mars 500 astronauts speak after simulated journey to Red Planet - video

 Tweet

Я рекомендую 5

 reddit this

Crew members of the Mars 500 project remain on friendly terms after their simulated 520-day 'mission' to the Red Planet. The experiment aims to answer one of the big unknowns of deep-space travel: can people stay healthy and sane during 520 days rocketing to and back from Mars?

theguardian

Science

Mars · Astronomy · Space

World news

Russia

More video

More on this story

Russian space agency battles to save Mars probe Phobos-Grunt probe designed to collect samples from a moon of Mars becomes stuck in orbit after booster rockets fail to fire

Mars 'astronauts' are still friends after 520 days locked up together

 Russia launches rocket to Mars' moon Phobos - video

Mars crew
emerge from 18-month mission
that never left the car park

 Mars 500
mission to nowhere ends
where it began - video

Mars mission in a Moscow hangar is no joke, say astronauts

Spacewatch: Two
missions poised for a journey to the Red Planet

More on Mars

guardian.co.uk, Wednesday 9 November 2011

 Send to a friend  Share  Clip  Embed Video play settings

Source: guardian.co.uk